EMBASSY RAID ATTRIBUTED TO ENGLISH PLOT

Russia Accuses England Of Wanting World War To Further Interests

MOSCOW, April 8.—The raid of Chang Tao Lin's police and soldiers on the compound at the Russian embassy in Peking was not made upon Chinese initiative, but was inspired if not directly ordered by Great Britain. It may develop into the "Sarajevo" of a new world war, which would open as an Anglo-Russian conflict, and is but another herald and warning to the world.

That in effect can be said to be the very sober opinion I find today reflected in Soviet government circles, and the impression created by the official Soviet press in its reports on the raid, as well as in the caustic yet somewhat reserved editorial comments.

The Russian public got its first news of the "raid" from a gross violation of extra-territoriality and international diplomatic immunity today. The official organs, Pravda and Izvestia, today, in an "attack" on Russia and an "unprecedented provocation" to war on the part of Britain in the latter's interventionist plans against Russia in which by methods of intimidation (Continued on Page 5)

AIMEE TAKES LITTLE HIKE FOR PRIVACY

(By Universal Service)
LOS ANGELES, April 8.—Denial was made today by Aimee Semple McPherson, nationally known evangelist, that she and her mother, Mrs. Minnie McPherson, had come to a parting of the ways. Mrs. McPherson had rented a house at the beach and a report was circulated that she would quit the Angeles Temple pulpit. She had been living in a residence adjoining the church. Her mother lived with her. Mrs. McPherson wants a little privacy and for that reason alone she took the beach house, Mrs. Kennedy said today. "Mother and I are on the best of terms," Mrs. McPherson declared. Mrs. Kennedy is generally recognized as the "business leader" of the religious organization over which Mrs. McPherson presides.

PRISON TERM OF TEN YEARS FACES KILLER

Jury Takes Three Hours To Render Verdict In Fatal Stabbing Duel

Jose Lopez, 45, Pinole Mexican section hand, was yesterday found guilty of a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of Jose Sierra, 48, fellow worker stabbed by Lopez in a knife duel at Pinole several months ago. The verdict was brought in at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, bringing to a close a trial commenced two days ago in the superior court at Martinez. The case went into the hands of the jury at 1:40 p.m., and it required but little less than three hours for the jury to reach a decision. Sentence will be imposed by Superior Judge H. A. Alvarado next Monday afternoon.

Yesterday morning's session was devoted chiefly to closing arguments. Stress was laid by the defense attorneys, T. D. Johnson and Leo Torrey, on the failure of the prosecution to introduce in evidence a knife and an axe, claimed to have been used in the fatal combat.

The missing knife, according to testimony yesterday, was the property of Sierra and was found in the bedroom of his home, where he was taken when his wife found him mortally wounded as a result of the knife duel with Lopez near the residence.

Deputy Coroner W. P. Drummond of Richmond gave testimony that brought out the fact that an axe, apparently blood-stained, was seen near the scene of the combat. However, it was not produced in any of the hearings Lopez was given.

Deputy District Attorney James F. Hoey, combatting defense claims of the importance of inability to produce the knife used by Sierra, cited admissions of the killing that had been made by Lopez to arresting officers at the coroner's inquest and at the preliminary examination. The defendant did not take the stand.

Sierra's widow and her mother, Mrs. Lena Rodriguez, both testified that Lopez and Sierra had been drinking heavily on the night of their duel.

Death Verdict Given Slayer Of Doctor On Charity Case

NEW YORK, April 7.—Francisco Caruso, the grief crazed Italian father who strangled and hacked to death Dr. Caspar Pendola whom he blamed for the death of his diphtheria stricken son, must die in the electric chair.

A jury in Kings county court tonight found him guilty of murder in the first degree after six hours and a half of deliberation. Caruso murdered Dr. Pendola last February after the young physician had administered antitoxin to little six year old Joseph Caruso in an effort to save the youngster.

"Doctor stick my boy in back and kill him. I kill doctor," the Italian was quoted as saying after the doctor had been slain in the kitchen of the Caruso home.

Caruso, who sat through the trial with head bowed and tears streaming down his cheeks, calmly received the verdict of the jury tonight.

Judge Alonso G. McLaughlin declared he would pass sentence on April 15 and turning to the jury added:

"Your verdict will make for law and order. Any other verdict would have been a miscarriage of justice."

"The Caruso case has attracted nationwide interest due to the fact that the young doctor was slain while on a mission of charity and was doing everything within his power to save the boy."

BANK EMPLOYEES CONFESS FRAUD WHICH NETTED OVER $400,000

Financial Wizard Named As Perpetrator Of Huge S. F. Swindle

A skyrocket financier, who "high pressured" two bank employees into an initial infraction of the law and then, through threats and bribes, made them tools in a $400,000 credit pyramiding fraud, That's how Owen M. Sullivan, 28-year old finance wizard, was pictured yesterday in a composite portrait composed of two confessions made by his alleged dupes, and in an exposure of his ingenious methods as described by high officials of the Anglo London and Paris National Bank.

The confessions, signed by Arthur V. Scott, assistant cashier in the bank, and Knud B. Hoega-burg, clerk, followed their formal arrest yesterday on charges of conspiracy involving Sullivan.

Confidently, Sullivan—the man who got his first backing through a carefully established reputation for honesty—was revealed as the central figure in a student election fraud at Stanford university nine years ago.

At that time, according to Stanford authorities, the so-called "master mind" used his office as (Continued on Page 5)

Cancellation Of War Debt Is Held Menace To World Peace

(By Universal Service)
BALTIMORE, Md., April 8.—Cancellation of war debts by the United States would furnish an impetus for larger expenditures for armies and navies in Europe and thus constitute a threat to world peace, Representative Theodore E. Burton, Republican, of Ohio, warned in an address before the Civitan club here today.

Settlements made have been "generous to the debtors and fair to American taxpayers, who advanced the loans," declared Burton, who is a member of the American World War debt refunding commission. He said:

"We have certainly tried to be helpful in our relations with Europe. Public and private benevolence has furnished between $500,000,000 and $1,000,000,000 for the aid of suffering peoples on that continent."

"We are still ready to aid in every possible way, but the overwhelming sentiment of the American people—if I can judge correctly—is against further cancellation of the debts."

"Let us consider the comparative burden of military expenditures in Europe with that of their indebtedness to us. The figures are certainly startling."

"France, under its most recent budget, provided $1,000,000,000 for military and naval expenditures, amounting to approximately $200,000,000, while her initial annual payment to us, with no interest, is only $30,000,000."

"Rumania expended about $27,000,000 last year for military expenses. The present worth of her debt to us on the basis of 4-1-4 percent, the ordinary rate of interest upon our bonds, is $35,172,000."

"This would mean that in a year and one-third her military expenses would pay the whole debt. That of Poland would be paid in two and one-half years by her military expenses."

"England expended annually approximately $682,000,000 for military and naval expenses, as against $161,000,000 on her debt to us. Her increase in military expenses over pre-war time is $200,000,000—more than the annual payment to us."

Burton said he doubted that another debt conference could be more thorough in examining the ability of debtor nations to pay than had been the World War debt-funding commission and congressional committees in their investigations. He added:

Operetta Of Roosevelt Hi Is Pronounced Huge Success

Playing before a crowd that taxed the capacity of the school auditorium, the Glee club of the Roosevelt Junior high school last night presented the operetta, "Polished Pebbles." Produced under the direction of Miss Catherine Warner and Miss Irene Weber, the show was an unqualified success and helped swell the general fund of the school.

The program was as follows: Overture, opening chorus, "I For One Can Say," by Eleanor Pace; chorus of welcome, Lois Hutchinson, Virginia Giegoldt, Irene Randall, Eleanor Pace, Geraldine Cleek and chorus; "When I Was in Paris," Lois Hutchinson; "Old Black Joe," Edwin Brooks; "Farewell," Geraldine Cleek and Edwin Brooks; "This and That," Lois Hutchinson, Irene Randall and Virginia Giegoldt; "The Picture in the Wall," Irene Beal and James (Continued on Page 5)

DISINTERESTED WITNESSES

Three bills before the Ohio legislature deal with the expert witness problem in trial courts. One of them, already passed by the lower house and waiting for Senate action, would provide that in civil action, the judge of the trial court may appoint not more than three disinterested qualified experts to investigate and testify under oath and to make a fair and impartial examination and a true report. Their compensation is to be fixed by the county and collected as part of the court costs.

The other two bills make life provision for criminal and insanity cases.

All three of the bills have the approval of the American Bar association and the American Medical association. If they become law and are properly enforced, they should hit directly at one of the outstanding abuses of present court justice.

The conflicting testimony of experts hired by the opposing sides in any law case has come to be a ridiculous and disgusting spectacle. It has not only helped to foster the popular conviction that the "whole truth" is never sought by either side in a trial, but has also helped to bring about distrust of the whole procedure. It is obvious that the experts on both sides cannot be equally well informed or equally honest when their testimony is directly contradictory. If such testimony is to mean anything at all or to have any value in the forwarding of justice, it will have to be disinterested as well as authoritative and honest.

TEN YEARS IS TIME ENOUGH

Recently in answering an inquiry about the possibility of removing tattooing from the skin, I informed the correspondent that the only way the mutilation can be removed is by surgical excision or cutting out the skin, perhaps with a flap or graft of normal skin transplanted to fill the defect. This is feasible only when the mutilated portion is comparatively small in area. I added that the person who committed the mutilation ought to get 10 years in prison.

Another correspondent seeks to learn the identity and address of the tattooed victim — which, of course, I cannot divulge — and asks a question which I have been waiting for:

"You would give the tattoo artist 10 years. Why do you not make it life?"

Life imprisonment is a reasonable penalty for unpemitted murder and certain other vicious crimes. It would be relatively unimportant, excessive punishment to imprison a person for life for tattooing another person who voluntarily submitted to the mutilation. If we deem life imprisonment fair and just punishment for this comparatively low degree of felony, then hanging, shooting, electrocution or other forms of execution are inadequate.

The tattooing of the human skin, for any other purpose than to conceal or render less conspicuous actual blemishes, is not a crime under the statutes, but it should be legally designated a felony, as is mayhem, or maiming an individual.

The tattooing of pictures, insignia or other devices on the skin, whether these are in themselves artistic or obscene, is a crime against nature. The victim who voluntarily submits to the mutilation of his skin should receive some punishment, too. He needs punishment to teach him greater respect for his own body.

If our children were rightly instructed about human physiology and hygiene in school they would scarcely succumb to the impulse to have these shameful marks indelibly impressed upon their bodies. A man or woman with a fair education cannot so mistreat his or her own body.

But even though we give our children a dirty deal in the way of education, even though we fail to inculcate in their minds a wholesome respect for their own bodies (and incidentally other people, everybody), why should we not endeavor to right the wrong by making this crime a serious one and thus putting a damper on this unsightly practice?

Years ago the amateur psychologists said a good deal about the "stigmata of degeneracy," these being oddities or abnormalities of feature which the psychologists attempted to associate with the "criminal class." Of course this was a mere fancy which we no longer entertain seriously. There is no "criminal class" — you and I and our esteemed neighbors are as likely to commit crimes as any other folk are, whether we have outstanding ears or not. But in medical practice when the physician observes decorative tattooing on the patient's skin the doctor properly draws certain deductions which have a bearing on the case.

tient's history and the diagnosis. The mark tells the doctor that the patient is or in the past has been aberrant. In short, the mutilation is a badge of shame.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Springtime Vagaries

Is your hair coming out? I can recommend something to keep it in. A cigar box. H.O.K.

I have tried everything that purports to stop falling hair and I now believe the only thing will stop it is the floor. L.B.

Answer—Falling hair is no joke. These comments are published here merely as curious antiquities. My observation on this subject has been that it is in the spring the fall is most noticeable. In the spring the young man's fancy fondly turns to hair restorers, dandruff remedies and slick-em-dope for his hair. Before my own had fallen I used to talk more confidently on the subject than I do now. But even now I think I have about all the solid facts relating to the care of the hair in the little monograph which I am glad to send to any reader who needs advice about oily hair, dandruff, loss of hair or the growth of the hair, provided the reader incloses with his request stamped envelope bearing his address.

Reply to N. M.

You will have no reason to regret it if you repeat your question and sign your name and inclose a stamped addressed envelope so that I may mail an answer to you, privately. If you can't do this, I can only say here that your recent change of views is all wrong and your earlier principles were absolutely right.

No Lemon in This Assortment

Please tell me if the following are fattening: Oranges, pineapples, prunes. O.M.G.K.

Answer—It would be a tremendous achievement to grow fat on any or all of these fruits. Grapes, figs, dates, bananas, would be more likely to fatten one.

Styes

Please inform me what causes styes. I have had three of them on the same eye within a month. I wear glasses but I don't understand why I should be bothered with so many. Miss R.

Answer—Infection of the eyelash follicles (cavities from which our lashes grow) with the same organisms which ordinarily cause boils. Any impairment of health or bad hygienic environment may predispose to styes. Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and repeat your request. I have no information to give, unless the correspondent tells me he has styes.

MARTIAL VACATIONS

MIS PLAY: I see another couple are going to take a vacation. A woman in New York who has been married twelve years to the same man has decided they ought to take a year's vacation. Well, maybe it's a good idea. I dare say half the divorces are caused by the weariness and boredom that comes when a man and his wife are cooped up together and have to see each other twenty-four hours.

A Queenly Dream

Are the children running the family? Is it Mary who says: "Mother, I wish you would stop into those unmentionables instead of being ten years behind the times." Is it Johnnie who discovers that pater's car is out of date? Do the writers of advertisements overlook the fact that it is youth which steps on the purchasing power, even if it is the parents who furnish the gas? After all, is it the Age of Youth?

One of our young readers was so impressed with the letter "What One Mother Knew" that she wants to tell her own mother how to wake up. And so she addressed this "One Mother" as—

"Dear Queen of Mothers: 'I shall imagine myself your little girl throughout life. As I return from school I kiss you on the cheek and ask you for some bread and butter or an apple. Later you will help me with my hope chest. In my primary years you will take me in the woods and hunt for violets. In my teens you will arrange parties for me. Always and always you shall be my playmate and companion. Oh, but it is a pity that you are the Fairy Queen of Mothers. I can't express how much I love you on paper.

"All my life I have sought my pleasure and information from others than my mother. To begin with, mother separated from my father when I was nine years old. She then branched out into the business world and I saw her only at breakfast, dinner and supper. In the evening she went to this club and to that lecture, failing to give me a lecture when I needed it sometimes. Mother always gave me plenty of money but this did not take the place of love and affection. She would be delighted when I was in a play at school or gave a recitation or a little dance, and would call me her little doll. But when I would ask her a question her answer was, 'You are too young to know,' or 'I will tell you when I have time.'

"One incident that stands out in my mind brings me up to the present question. Mother advises me to marry a man many years my senior but I do not love him and I am sure I would not be happy with him. I love another and am willing to wait until he of the day, seven days a week, fifty-two weeks a year. Maybe the vacation plan solves such problems, for they certainly become problems after twelve years.

HER COUNTER PLAY: Nonsense! You don't seem to see the value of the plan this New York joke suggests. She admits that they will continue to see each other and perhaps have breakfast together once a week and he's going to call and take her to a show, and all that sort of thing. Now, really, my dear, do you think the plan will work out? Will that be a vacation? Will he not wonder what she is doing with her time and will she not worry, just a little bit, about where he's spending his evenings? Vacations? Don't talk such nonsense to me.

THE REFEREE: Among normal people, such as we are, her viewpoint is nearest right. She wins the debate.

Matinee Ladies

By William B. Courtney

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picture.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, a poverty-stricken engineering student who is working his way through college by whatever jobs he can get at the college employment bureau, is informed by his two chums, Freddy and Arch, that they have found an easy and profitable way to earn money—by working as dancing partners, of evenings, for rich women in a fashionable roadhouse. Bob thinks it isn't a way to make a living; but, faced with eviction for unpaid rent, reluctantly agrees to go to the roadhouse, remembering his bitter four year battle with poverty.

Bob had even pledged himself in debt to get through this all-important senior year. The University authorities, the Employment Bureau, the professors, his mates, all had been bully. But this was undoubtedly a strain and a sacrifice far beyond what any other working university student had ever been called upon to make; there was nothing for Bob to do but fight his way out, somehow.

Then the offer from his two sworn chums, Freddy and Arch, who had secured the roadhouse work, entertaining the so-called "Matinee Ladies," and had immediately spoken up to the Proprietress of the inn for their hard-pressed friend.

Many of these matters Bob Ward reviewed in his mind during the ride down to the Fort Lee ferry, the pleasant trip across the swirling river in the bright early afternoon sunshine of a glorious Spring day, and the rapid flight in a great bus through a bristling woods that fringed the rim of the upper Palisades like a coxcomb; to the secluded and exclusive Palisado Inn.

Far from being a modest town, nestled in a ten-acre private preserve, the Palisado Inn reared its aquat head, and its upper windows like piggy eyes, above the coops. A great spider watching for flies; a mammoth bug leering its dominion over the crawling things, the buzzing things, of the surrounding woods. Normal life passed by the Palisado Inn. The life that frolicked and soothed within its too-tightly toned walls was the uneven, surfeited life of alien rampants in a deserted honey hive.

Bob was conscious of a peculiar sensation of stickiness, of heaviness, of sugary sweat, that left in his mouth the taste of an over-sweetened nut, that made his head feel a bit too tight as he stepped into the bowered side entrance of the Inn.

All the way over from the campus he had been subjected to a barrage of banter by his exuberant friends — nice boys, both Freddy and Arch, but without a serious purpose in the world other than the wherewithal for the day. Scholastic standing was the last, the minutest, of their cares. The future sat gently upon their heads. "Old Soberlows," they dubbed Bob, rollicking.

A moment after entering the Inn, Freddy and Arch, as with one accord, turned to enjoy the expression that they expected would be upon Bob's face when he should see for the first time, the sandy, hot, whirling interior of a fashionable roadhouse dance hall. They saw an expression that they did not expect.

"For the love of Hannah," exclaimed Freddy, "would you look at old Sackcloth and Ashes!"

For the roadhouse, Bob's eyes were wide and shabby and filled with the sudden vision of the prettiest girl he had ever seen.

It was, evidently, a reciprocal glad amazement. For the girl who was the object of Bob's startled glance was returning it with interest. It was quaintly as though neither of them had ever expected to behold the likes of the other in such a ribald place.

CHAPTER III

It was, evidently, a reciprocal glad amazement. For the girl who was the object of Bob's startled glance was returning it with interest. It was quaintly as though neither of them had ever expected to behold the likes of the other in such a ribald place.

She was rather an incredible sight. She was a girl of about twenty, with a face that was a study in contrasts. Her eyes were a deep, dark blue, and her hair was a rich, dark brown. She was wearing a simple, dark dress, and she was looking at Bob with a direct, unflinching gaze.

Bob was staring at her, and she was staring at him. For a moment, neither spoke. The air was thick with the unspoken words that were passing between them. It was a moment of pure magic, a moment that would live in their memories for the rest of their lives.

She was rather an incredible sight. She was a girl of about twenty, with a face that was a study in contrasts. Her eyes were a deep, dark blue, and her hair was a rich, dark brown. She was wearing a simple, dark dress, and she was looking at Bob with a direct, unflinching gaze.

Bob was staring at her, and she was staring at him. For a moment, neither spoke. The air was thick with the unspoken words that were passing between them. It was a moment of pure magic, a moment that would live in their memories for the rest of their lives.

Men Who Made the World

WHEN ROBIN HOOD REACHED THE PALACE, QUEEN ELIZABETH WAS WALKING IN THE ROYAL GARDENS. ROBIN HOOD KNEELED BEFORE HER. SHE LOOKED IN SURPRISE AT THE OUTLAW SHE HAD BEFRIENDED AND ROBIN HOOD EXPLAINED HIS PRESENCE. THE QUEEN MADE GOOD HER WORD OF PROTECTION AND ROBIN HOOD WAS ESCORTED BY A KNIGHT PAID SAFELY BACK TO SHERWOOD FOREST.

KING RICHARD I.

SUCH WAS THE LIFE OF ROBIN HOOD AND HIS MEN. IN DUE TIME, KING HENRY AS WE PREVIOUSLY LEARNED, DIED, AND WENT TO HIS REWARD, AND RICHARD ASCENDED THE THRONE. WE KNOW THE STORY OF RICHARD'S CRUSADE TO THE HOLY LAND, HIS ADVENTURES THERE, AND WE LEFT HIM A PRISONER IN RICHMOND CASTLE.

By Dr. Elliot Shoring, The Noted Historian

EVENUALLY RICHARD WAS RANSOMED, REACHING ENGLAND IN MARCH OF 1194. HE MADE A ROYAL TOUR OF ENGLAND AND AT NOTTINGHAM, A GREAT PAGEANT AND CEREMONY WAS STAGED FOR THE KING'S COMING. THE STORY HAS IT THAT AS THE PROCESSION, HEADED BY THE KING, PROMENADED THE STREETS, THE KING NOTICED A BAND OF TALL, STALWART MEN IN PRIESTLY GARB. HE COMMENTED ON THEIR STATURE AND APPARENT STRENGTH TO HIS ESCORT, THE SHERIFF, REMARKING: 'I WISH THAT I HAD AN ARMY OF SUCH MEN AS YOUR TALL PRIESTS.' THE SHERIFF DID NOT REPLY, FOR, TO HIS AMAZEMENT, IN THE STALWART MEN HE RECOGNIZED LITTLE JOHN, WILL SCARLET AND ROBIN HOOD, WITH OTHERS OF THE BAND WHO HAD COME IN PRIESTLY DISGUISE TO ENJOY THE PAGEANT. THAT NIGHT, AS THE COURTIER GATHERED IN THE GREAT BANQUET HALL, THE KING LAUGHINGLY REMARKED TO THE SHERIFF THAT HE HAD HEARD OF A FAMOUS OUTLAW ROBIN HOOD, WHO, WITH HIS BAND, HID IN SHERWOOD FOREST. RICHARD WISHED TO KNOW OF THEM, AND WAS THEREUPON REDEALED WITH STORIES OF THE EXPLOITS OF ROBIN HOOD AND HIS BAND. HE LAUGHED HEARTILY, ENJOYING THE STORIES HEUGLY.

Flat Furs Trim Many of the New Spring Sport Coats

Kasha and Tweeds in Pastel Shades Are Shown

CARMEL MYERS DOROTHY SEBASTIAN

Many of the new sport coats shown for Spring have treatments developed of the smart flat tops so fashionable this year. Especially is this true of the kasha and tweed fabrics, which, strictly tailored, have chic upstanding or tuxedo collars of smart pony, calf and American broadtail furs. Kasha coats, both in its natural shadings and in pastel colors fastened with fur collars and borders or with only novel fur pockets to enhance them, are much to the fore this season.

An exceptionally smart coat of this type is the one pictured, worn by Carmel Myers in "The Demi-Bride," her latest Metro-Goldwyn-May production. It is of natural kasha trimmed with a tuxedo collar and deep border of champagne-colored calf skin. Two interesting V-shaped pockets add further chic.

BOY SCOUTS HAVE INNING AT RICHMOND

The Boy Scouts have their inning in the latest Buck Jones western, "The Flying Horseman," which had its first showing at the Richmond theatre yesterday. In this latest Fox Film release, Buck becomes the guardian of a bunch of kids who have never been taught any of the finer points of civilized society by their ne'er-do-well father. So, there is nothing for Buck to do but train them himself, a job that proves almost hopeless until he is assisted by Gladys McConnell, who plays the girl in the story.

They find their task greatly simplified when Gladys tries and succeeds in making boy scouts out of them. The change wrought by baths and clean uniforms is startling and soon the little hooligans begin to act like human beings. They help considerably in carrying forward the action of a very interesting story of the west. They rescue Buck from a precarious situation by forming a living pyramid and generally acting well, like boys usually act who let loose. It is a good picture and the audience who saw the first performance seemed to enjoy it heartily.

Other film features include "Sweet Pickle," a roaring comedy; and "The Raging Tide," a screen novelty.

Charles Ray and May McAvoy, in a scene from "THE FIRE BRIGADE," new being screened at the California theatre.

FIRE BRIGADE LAST TIMES AT CALIFORNIA

"The Fire Brigade," which closes its engagement at the California theatre tonight, might easily be called a picture of highlights, so full of thrills it is.

This production does for the fireman what "The Big Parade" did for the American soldier, and brings before the public in an arresting manner the necessity of fire prevention without at any time becoming a preachment on the subject.

A gripping, dramatic story has been woven against a background of fire and fire-fighters that holds the spectator from beginning to end. The story tells of "Terry O'Neill," descended from a long line of fire-fighters, his initial enthusiasm, his love for the daughter of a wealthy man whom he later discovers to be the head of the whole city government, his disgust at this man's crooked methods, and the consequent quarrel with his sweetheart over her father, his heroism in a spectacular orphanage fire caused through the neglect of the politician, and the final reconciliation with the daughter and his later public recognition for his heroism.

The studio had the expert cooperation of the International Order of Fire Engineers in the making of the picture, and the fire scenes were all staged by the Los Angeles fire department under the supervision of Fire Chief Ralph Scott of that city.

"The Fire Brigade" is the first directorial effort of William Nigh for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and it places him in a similar position to that of King Vidor after he had triumphed with "The Big Parade."

Charles Ray is seen in the role of "Terry O'Neill." Noted for his humanity, the actor has excelled himself in the delineation of this character. It is one that allows for considerable comedy, yet depends principally upon drama for its appeal.

May McAvoy is seen opposite Ray as "Helen Corwin," daughter of the politician, and not only has photographed to the finest advantage, but brings a wealth of charm and understanding to her part.

A large percentage of the profits derived from the showing of "The Fire Brigade" are to be given to the International Order of Fire Engineers for their work in the cause of fire prevention, and another portion will go to various fire and sick benefits maintained by fire department locals.

trigue and secret diplomacy, she is endeavoring to use other powers as pawns.

There is an unmistakable conviction that England means war and that Anglo-Russian hostilities, especially in the form of intervention, are but the beginning of another world conflict. There is professed here an equally strong determination to avoid such a war, and it is difficult to doubt the sincerity of such determination when one is on the ground in Moscow.

The Peking raid is flatly and openly attributed to England. Press and officials declared the connection between surrounding the Soviet Russia consulate in Shanghai by British soldiers searching all who enter and leave, and the Peking raid, is too obvious to be ignored.

Britain is painted as a "sinister black shadow" behind Chang Isin and the "dark cloud that obscures the horizon of peace."

Adding to the danger of the situation generally, England, as I found recently in London, considers her empire menaced by Russia and exhibits a fear of Russia that seems silly at this time when one is in the Soviet realm. The situation has a certain analogy to Britain's fear of Germany prior to 1914 and hence the view is held here that after destroying the Spanish Empire, France and Germany, it is historically logical that Britain, as soon as she feels the psychological moment has arrived, will endeavor to break up the Russian "menace."

"It took Britain fifteen years to encircle Germany and it may take nearly as long to encircle Russia, but that is England's aim as is obvious as was the encirclement of Germany," said an official.

The Dutch minister to Peking, who is reported to have given the diplomatic corps' consent to the raid, is characterized as a "tool of England."

Much significance is being attached in diplomatic circles to the fact that neither the Soviet Press nor officials make the slightest mention or allusion to Japan. On the other hand, from certain non-Soviet sources an attempt is being made to create the belief that American legation at Peking had knowledge in advance of the raid, it even being stated that the raiding police and soldiers were permitted to cross a portion of the ground of the American military detachment to reach the Russian compound. There are obvious efforts to make it appear that America is working secretly with Britain. The question most frequently asked of me is: "Is it true that President Coolidge has now agreed to a joint policy with Britain in China?"

The Russian press finds much pleasure and consolation today in the attitude of a large part of the German press in denouncing the raid. Germany's position of walking a tight rope by balancing Russian on one side and England on the other looms up even more difficult when viewed from here than as I saw it at Geneva when Foreign Minister Stresemann was trying to sidestep Sir Austen Chamberlain's siren whispers and blandishments.

Until it is definitely known who's master hand guided the violations of the consulate at Shanghai and the trade mission at Tien-Tsin, the Soviet government continues firmly to refuse to be stampeded into premature action.

This is the gist of an interview obtained by Universal Service with a high foreign office official today.

It was stressed that the only sane course of action left open was for the Soviet government to continue to make desperate efforts to get all the details before taking any action.

The foreign office is inclined to believe that the Americans had nothing to do with the raid. The foreign official declared that he sincerely hoped this was the case.

No doubt seems to exist in government circles that England was the power behind Chang Tso-Lin's action. Peking reports that the Manchurian warlord received a guaranty of Japanese support in Manchuria before the raid and was unconvinced here. On the contrary, all indications are that the Japanese feel themselves in a difficult position in China and are prone to stand aside.

M. Tanaka, the Japanese Ambassador, made a long call today upon acting Foreign Minister Litvinoff. It is significant that the delicate situation has brought no proclamations by the comintern (third international, non demonstrations from the proletariat, although it is believed that any continuation of the raid would make further watchful waiting impossible.

WASHINGTON, April 8. — The United States today chartered the President Grant of the Dollar Steamship lines, to take more machines to China.

This was done as the tense situation assumed more alarming aspects at Shanghai, Hankow, and all of North China. It developed that the government has no transport available.

Marines are now speeding across the continent to board the President Grant as soon as she can be made ready. She is due to reach Los Angeles tomorrow from

Wampus Baby Star Gets 'Orange Crush'

If you don't believe in Fairies—just look at this picture! It was taken at Anaheim the other day when Dainty Mary McAllister, Wampus Baby Star, visited the site of the 7th California Valencia show where stirring scenes are to be enacted May 19th to 28th.

When presented with a big juicy Valencia orange, Miss McAllister smacked her lips and cut it open. "I imagine I can see Fairies" she exclaimed. "See, this little fat celt is Old King Cole, and look! there is Jack's Bannister as sure as you live."

It was true that the stem which runs through the orange did look something like a beanstalk as pictured in the story books. "Well, personally, I think you have a good imagination," laughed George Reid, manager of the show. "I guess we've been telling you so much about the theme of the show that you're seeing things."

This year's motif of the show is what set Mary to imagining, and who wouldn't. For the com-mittee chose "The Enchanted story book" to illustrate in the feature exhibits, decorations and entertainments. Every conceivable scheme has been thought out to make this show live long in the memory of visitors, and the motif gives full play to the ingenuity of decorators and exhibit builders.

When Mary got home, she told her cameraman about her experience, and he immediately produced her Fairy orange with the Fairies in it—just to show Mr. Reid that it could be done!

the far east and will sail as shortly thereafter as provision can be made to accommodate the 1500 additional marines.

She is under complete charter to the United States government and will remain so until the emergency is ended.

The President Grant will sail not later than April 20, probably before. Her ordinary cruising time to Shanghai is 20 days, in which she makes many stops. Under new schedule she will make no stops and sail under forced draft. She should make the trip in a little more than two weeks, as compared with one month for the navy transports.

The assumption was that the President Grant would rush direct to Shanghai and debark the marines who will do service there. In the meantime it is believed that Admiral C. S. Williams, commander in chief of the American forces, will send detachments of marines from his Shanghai base to Tientsin aboard destroyers.

The water at Tientsin is so shallow that it is feared the President Grant will not be able to dock there safely.

The charter of the President Grant was made in direct negotiation between Admiral Edward W. Heberle, chief of naval operations, and Stanley Dollar, head of the Dollar lines. The shipping board gave consent for the commercial ship to abandon its regular sailing to answer the call from the naval reserve to active service.

Other ships of the Dollar line are being held in readiness and may be chartered if need for them arises.

This confirms exclusive Universal Service dispatches Tuesday night revealing that the third regiment of marines now being concentrated has received orders to sail for China and that a commercial ship would be used for the purpose.

The President Grant, as well as the other "President" ships, were built as transports during the World war. They were designed to transport troops to France in the quickest possible time. The President Grant can do better than 17 knots an hour.

With the announcement that the President Grant had been chartered, Chairman T. V. O'Connor, of the United States shipping board, wrote a letter to Secretary of the Navy Withers outlining a program to supply the navy with sufficient ships for every purpose.

Chances between Chinese and foreigners at Shanghai, Hankow and Tientsin where foreigners are concentrated, are momentarily expected, reports from Admiral Williams indicate today.

It was upon his urgent appeal that decision was reached some days ago to charter a fast commercial ship to rush additional marines to the scene. Negotiations were opened then and kept secret until today.

At Shanghai snipers from the native city have fired upon the Japanese guard, which has necessitated the landing of 800 additional Japanese marines. The firing was returned and the sniping halted, at least temporarily.

A major engagement is looked for in this sector.

Nationalist reinforcements are being hurried to Pukow, in the effort to stem the Shantung tide.

Martial law has been declared at Wuhu. Disorders are threatened there by the Nationalists.

In the northern area of Shanghai, Japanese marines, supported by British forces, engaged in a likely skirmish with Chinese gunmen. One Japanese marine was wounded, and two Chinese were killed.

Peking is being evacuated by all American women and children. Mrs. John Van A. MacMurray and her children, the family of the American minister, have announced their forthcoming departure from Peking.

Reports from Nanking confirm the heavy movement of Nationalist troops in that sector but it is stated that the Nationalists have gained no ground.

Raiders against alleged centers of Nationalist sympathy continue. An American missionary institution at Yanching has been warned of a possible raid, on the grounds that radical students are being sheltered there.

In Shanghai, the situation is comparatively quiet. Seven hundred Japanese marines have been landed.

The curfew hours have been extended, following the skirmish between the Japanese marines and the Chinese gunmen. Guards have been doubled in that section of Shanghai where the skirmish took place.

On April 15 an important conference will be held at Nanking, when the Nationalists will attempt to settle internal party difficulties. General Chiang Kai Shek left for Nanking tonight.

The British defense corps at Hong Kong will be strengthened by the first battalion of the Middlesex (British) regiment, which will leave Shanghai for that port.

The situation has been aggravated by the fact that the Soviet legation has been surrounded and a determined effort has been made to halt efforts to agitate the Cantonese to anti-foreign demonstration. This, it is reported, has intensified the existing bad feeling.

At Hankow the situation is "steadily growing worse." Rear but Mr. Ford has not definitely fixed the date nor the price. A considerable reduction in price is expected.

A new eight cylinder is also being experimented upon, said to be Edsall Ford's contribution to motordom, which will cost between $1,000 and $1,400, it is reported. It will bear a new name and will not be identified with the Lincoln, it is said.

Ford is interested chiefly in his new four cylinder model. He is not a believer in art for automobiles. He believes the American public desires a car that will run, run cheaply, run without costly repairs and run a long time.

He is interested almost solely in producing a mechanically perfect car at a price within the reach of every American family rather than to turn out delight to the eye, it was learned. That is the reason there will be no revolutionary style changes on the new Ford. It will be plain but practical.

The design of the body, save for the new spring attachment which will lower the center of gravity of the car and improve its safety, may not differ at all from the present model, it is said.

SAN FRANCISCO—Construction commenced on first of series of beach tea shops on ocean front to cost $70,000.

Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the church of St. Paul in San Pablo. Interment will follow in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mrs. Babich is survived by her husband, Frank Babich, and three children, John, Albert and Alma, all of Richmond.

Admiral H. H. Hough, in command of the American patrol on the Yangtze reported by radio, "I am bringing pressure to bear on all Americans who remain ashore (about 100) to keep in touch with our warships and hasten their departure," he declared.

He plans to remain there with his four American warships until the Monocacy, from Chungking, and the Palos, from Changsha, with American refugees reach Hankow. Then with the British ships and refugees he will depart for Shanghai and abandon the Yangtze river valley to the revolutionists.

The task of holding out at Hankow is becoming increasingly difficult and a reign of terror has gripped the city. He reported that a Japanese civilian was shot in the head and took refuge on the American gunboat Pigeon.

"Fights between groups of coolies on shore are becoming more frequent," Admiral Hough declared. "Lawlessness is increasing with no apparent effort on the part of the local government to check it."

Japanese are leaving the city in large numbers and 100 Germans are endeavoring to charter the steamer Chi Chuen to evacuate, he said.

The British evacuation above Hankow has been completed and with the arrival of the two American warships all Americans who elected to leave the upper river will have done so, he said. Many Americans have already taken refuge aboard ships, awaiting the order for the allied flotilla to steam down the river.

At Kiating, the warehouse of Anderson Myers, an American firm, has been looted by Chinese. At Amoy the situation is again quiet. The strike of seamen has been settled and the port is said to be functioning as usual.

Raving Bitterly He Was Carried From The Scene

"Be the first on the scene—be a reporter," reads a modern advertisement. Nothing is said, however, of incurring disaster by parking within a block of a fire. John Del Valle, enterprising young newspaper reporter, was certainly one of the first on the scene of a Richmond fire yesterday. E. L. Plotner, Los Angeles salesman, was already there and Traffic Officer Edward Baker had just completed "tagging" him.

With a world of condolence on his tongue, Del Valle stepped forward to commiserate the stricken. Fire Chief W. P. Cooper then ordered Baker to issue another citation, declaring that the law concerning fires, apparatus and hose would be strictly enforced.

The local Y.M.C.A. volleyball team took the Reno Merry Wid-igan to the tune of 4-15, 15-11, and 15-8. The Widows, captained by Sussana Lester, won the first game easily but tired during the second and lost the third to the "Y" business men easily. The lineup for the "Y" was S. E. Turner, R. E. Schrader, H. O. Quigley, Charles K. Parker, and Clare

Bryant. The lineup for the Widows was Sussana Lester, Tillie

Giberson, Phoebe Murray, Rebecca

the games the Widows removed their disguises and proved to be members of the business men's class.

C. E. Parker was chairman of the program which was held after the banquet. Talks on "Why our

SWITCH FIGHTS AT EL CERRITO TO APRIL 14

Don't forget ye fight fans that

El Cerrito's next show will be on Thursday night of next week, April 14, instead of Friday night. Why?

Well, you know Friday is Good

Friday and rather than conflict with the folk who like to lay off on that Holy day, matchmaker and promoter of the club thought it much wiser to hold a day earlier. Not a club on either side of the bay ever holds on that date and so it behooved the El

Cerrito club to act likewise.

A flistic morsel will be on tap for their April 14 date. Eddie

Shepherd a classy Mormon of Salt

Lake, who lays claim to the middle and light heavyweight chamionship of the Intermountain regions will stack up against Racehorse Roberts, tough light heavyweight trial horse of Oakland.

Shepherd comes well recommended as his clipping book shows that he has beat (note we say beat)

Stringham, Tiger Jack Payne and many other high class men of the ring who are considered the stars of Ringdom.

It was a ten strike that matchmaker Billy Bernheim put over for Promoter Joseph Ross, when he signed up such a boy for this section. Many of the promoters on either side of the bay would have welcomed the chance of showing such a classy boy as Shepherd and when Bernheim beat the others to the showing of such a boy he was not idle. Shepherd is all fighter. He would rather fight than eat. He faces Racehorse

Roberts in the eight round feature of the show. Almost every one knows Racehorse. He is a veteran who has boxed the best and is always sure to give the fans a real evening's enjoyment when he is in the ring.

A six round semi will be furnished when Bud Fisher of Portland clashes with Gunner Wood of Oakland. Fisher is just back from the north, where he beat many of the best boys such as

Dynamite George, Eddie Roberts

and others. Fisher is one of those roughhouse artists so, when he clashes with Gunner there will be far flying all over the house.

Although Wood was declared a loser at the last fight with Jimmy McDermott many did not like the savor of Benny Wagner's verdict. But all referees have their bad nights. None are infallible.

Wagner thus far has given the best and his verdicts are all honest.

So Wood undaunted will again try and show the fans that he is a real fighter. McDermott tried very hard to put the Southern boy from Georgia away at the last show, but the Gunner showed he had some real stuff in him when the mad McDermott almost out in the last round to be declared a
